

Global Business Innovation Programme Critical Minerals Canada

Innovate UK's Global Business Innovation Programme helps businesses explore collaborative innovation and growth opportunities that exist in overseas markets.

We are currently accepting applications to select up to 15 businesses in the Critical Minerals sector to join our programme supported by the High Commission of Canada.

The aim is to foster and support collaborative research and development through Canadian and UK partnerships.

We welcome applications from businesses developing innovative technologies that enable the commercialisation of circular solutions for critical minerals and their supply chains. Areas of focus include:

- Enhanced Circularity in Critical Minerals.
 - Battery systems.
 - High Performance Permanent Magnet systems.
- More Sustainable Use of Critical Minerals.
 - Processing and Manufacturing.
 - Reduction in Use.
- Innovations in Environmental, Societal, Governance (ESG) for Critical Minerals.
 - LCA and sustainability models for life cycle analysis of critical minerals and systems.
 - Measurement and accounting for embedded carbon, radioactivity, and other environmental and societal impacts of REE.
 - Provenance (e.g., material passports, digitization, traceability, etc.) of critical minerals and systems.

WHY THE CANADIAN MARKET?

Canada is renowned for its commitment to critical materials circularity and is a prime market for businesses developing innovative solutions in this area. The nation's approach to environmental, societal, and governance considerations positions it as a global leader in sustainable and critical material practices.

COLLABORATIVE RESEARCH & DEVELOPMENT FUNDING:

Coinciding with this GBIP, Innovate UK and the National Research Council of Canada Industrial Research Assistance Program (NRC IRAP) will be launching a collaborative research and development (CR&D) competition to foster UK and Canadian collaboration in critical minerals circularity. This is an opportunity to meet potential Canadian partners and start scoping projects.
